APUSH-MCQ10-001

Section: MCQ

Type: mcq

Unit: Unit 1 — Period 1: 1491–1607

Period: Period 1: 1491–1607

Theme: GEO — Geography and the Environment

Skill: Claims and Evidence in Sources

Prompt:

Stimulus: Secondary-source interpretation with described map. A historian argues that Arctic and Subarctic Native societies before sustained European contact developed sophisticated seasonal economies around sea mammals, fish, caribou, sled travel, kayaks, skin clothing, and kin-based exchange. A map shows coastal hunting sites, winter settlements, inland caribou routes, and summer fishing areas. Which evidence would best support this interpretation?

- A) Plantation account books from Barbados
- B) Spanish records describing silver mining in Mexico
- C) Archaeological remains of hunting tools, skin-sewing needles, fish bones, caribou remains, and seasonal camps
- D) Congressional debates over the Missouri Compromise

PART B — ANSWER KEY + EXPLANATIONS

APUSH-MCQ10-001 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: Archaeological remains of hunting tools, skin-sewing needles, fish bones, caribou remains, and seasonal camps — Explanation: These remains directly support claims about Arctic and Subarctic hunting, clothing, fishing, seasonal movement, and adaptation.

APUSH-MCQ10-002 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: Cold climate, seasonal animal migrations, and limited farming possibilities — Explanation: Environmental limits and animal migrations shaped specialized seasonal economies in Arctic and Subarctic societies.

APUSH-MCQ10-003 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Native societies created complex adaptations in environments that were not suited to intensive agriculture. — Explanation: The interpretation shows complexity based on hunting, fishing, mobility, technology, and exchange rather than farming alone.

APUSH-MCQ10-004 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: Pennsylvania land records and church registers showing varied European migrant communities and religious meetinghouses — Explanation: Land and church records would document diverse migration and religious pluralism in Pennsylvania.

APUSH-MCQ10-005 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: The Middle Colonies often developed more religious and ethnic pluralism than Puritan New England. — Explanation: Pennsylvania's Quaker leadership, toleration, and migration patterns reflected Middle Colony diversity.

APUSH-MCQ10-006 — Correct: C — Correct Answer: Negotiation among religious groups, colonial authorities, Native peoples, and frontier settlers over land and power — Explanation: Pennsylvania's plural society created political tensions around land, authority, and relations with Native peoples.

APUSH-MCQ10-007 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: Colonial identity was shaped by regional differences in migration, religion, land policy, and relations with Native peoples. — Explanation: The Pennsylvania example shows regional diversity within British colonial America.

APUSH-MCQ10-008 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Logistical and financial difficulties in sustaining the Continental Army — Explanation: The letter's references to shortages, pay, wagons, state delays, and hard money reflect Revolutionary wartime logistics.

APUSH-MCQ10-009 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: Revolutionary military success depended partly on coordination among Congress, states, soldiers, and private suppliers. — Explanation: The source shows that multiple institutions and private actors were necessary to sustain the army.

APUSH-MCQ10-010 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: Revolutionary governments struggled to wage war while preserving local authority and limited central power. — Explanation: Weak central authority and reliance on states made wartime mobilization difficult.

APUSH-MCQ10-011 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Whether to create stronger national fiscal and administrative powers under the Constitution — Explanation: Wartime and Confederation weaknesses helped fuel arguments for stronger national powers.

APUSH-MCQ10-012 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: Hamilton's program connected public finance, federal power, commercial development, and manufacturing. — Explanation: The table links debt, banking, revenue, tariffs, credit, and manufacturing.

APUSH-MCQ10-013 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Whether Congress could charter institutions using implied powers under the Constitution — Explanation: The national bank raised debate over implied powers and constitutional interpretation.

APUSH-MCQ10-014 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Economic policy debates helped define competing visions of federal power and national development. — Explanation: Hamilton's program generated disputes over federal authority, commerce, banking, and taxation.

APUSH-MCQ10-015 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Textile production shifted from household and outwork systems toward factory-based wage labor in some regions. — Explanation: The table shows declining outwork and expanding mills, factory schedules, and wage labor.

APUSH-MCQ10-016 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Early industrialization and the growth of wage labor in the market revolution — Explanation: Textile mills and factory discipline were part of the market revolution and early industrialization.

APUSH-MCQ10-017 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: Debate over workplace discipline, gender expectations, wages, and moral supervision of young workers — Explanation: Factory employment changed labor discipline and raised concerns about women, youth, wages, and morality.

APUSH-MCQ10-018 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: The market revolution transformed labor organization as well as transportation and commerce. — Explanation: The table shows that market change affected production systems and labor organization.

APUSH-MCQ10-019 — Correct: B — Correct Answer: The gag rule and women's participation in antislavery petition campaigns — Explanation: The petition's focus on Congress hearing antislavery petitions reflects the gag-rule controversy.

APUSH-MCQ10-020 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Women reformers used moral authority and petitioning to enter public political debate despite formal exclusion from voting. — Explanation: The petition explicitly notes women's lack of voting rights but claims moral authority to petition Congress.

APUSH-MCQ10-021 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Reform movements could expand ideas about citizenship and public voice even before formal political rights changed. — Explanation: Women's petitioning broadened public political participation before suffrage.

APUSH-MCQ10-022 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: The Oregon boundary settlement reflected diplomacy over competing British and U.S. claims in the Pacific Northwest. — Explanation: The map shows rival claims and the negotiated 49th parallel boundary.

APUSH-MCQ10-023 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Competing expansionist claims and diplomatic efforts to avoid war with Britain — Explanation: The Oregon settlement grew from U.S.-British negotiations over expansion in the Pacific Northwest.

APUSH-MCQ10-024 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Migration of U.S. settlers into the Oregon Country — Explanation: U.S. migration strengthened American claims to Oregon.

APUSH-MCQ10-025 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Expansion involved both migration and diplomacy, not only warfare. — Explanation: Oregon shows expansion through settler migration and diplomatic compromise.

APUSH-MCQ10-026 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Union lines became spaces where formerly enslaved people sought freedom, work, education, and protection. — Explanation: The photograph's families, tents, school scene, wages, rations, and Union post reflect contraband camp life.

APUSH-MCQ10-027 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: The growth of contraband camps and wartime labor arrangements around Union forces — Explanation: Formerly enslaved people often fled to Union lines, where camps and labor systems developed.

APUSH-MCQ10-028 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Enslaved people's flight to Union lines helped push federal policy toward emancipation and questions of wartime labor. — Explanation: Actions by enslaved people pressured Union policy and changed the war's meaning.

APUSH-MCQ10-029 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Emancipation was shaped by actions of enslaved people as well as federal military and political decisions. — Explanation: The image shows formerly enslaved families actively seeking freedom and changing wartime realities.

APUSH-MCQ10-030 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: The cattle kingdom connected western grasslands, railroads, eastern markets, and changing land use. — Explanation: The map links cattle trails, grazing lands, railheads, Chicago markets, and later fencing.

APUSH-MCQ10-031 — Correct: A — Correct Answer: Demand for beef in eastern urban markets — Explanation: Eastern demand and rail connections made long-distance cattle drives profitable.
